hack::peel

sponsorship package

Mission Statement

Our mission at hack::peel is to provide students with an interesting, educational event about technology, and challenge them to think outside of the box and bring their ideas to life. We aim to create an inclusive environment that cultivates learning, growth, and collaboration for students of all experience levels.

The hack::peel Team

We came up with hack::peel to increase engagement within the Peel community and give students enthusiastic about tech - like ourselves - an event to look forward to every year. Our team is made up of students with various backgrounds and interests, with some of us starting clubs, developing school apps, and participating in various tech competitions.
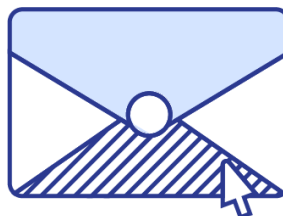

Event Outline

Tentative Date: April 29 - May 01
Estimated participant count: 200

Why Sponsor?

We're launching hack::peel to inspire students to innovate and think out of the box, and give the community a creative environment in which students can thrive. By sponsoring hack::peel, you're helping us create a space where generations of students can learn more about technology and create exciting new things for years to come.

Any contribution helps, whether it be credits, licenses, or simply financial help.

Exposure

Hackathons attract attendees who are ambitious and comfortable with tech. Having your brand displayed front-and-center at peel::hacks will get hundreds of budding tech enthusiasts interested in your products and services.

When you sponsor hack::peel, your brand will be showcased on our website, social media, and workshop streams, where it will be seen by all attendees.

Internship Recruitment

Many high school students are looking for ways to gain experience in their future career fields, with many students applying for internships and research opportunities. Having so many driven, capable students in one place is the perfect opportunity to assess students' strengths and offer them positions that benefit both you and them.

Hackathons and other similar events are a great way to grow personal networks and make new connections - and a great way for your company to hire talent.

Launching this hackathon has been a difficult yet exciting challenge for the hack::peel team, and we are grateful for your help in making this event the best it can be! We wouldn't be able to run without support from people like you.
